

And it continues...

Another one of you has sent me an expository story on cures for Sars-CoV-2, otherwise known as Covid-19.

I take some of these things personally - as a rebuke of sorts, for I've long held to the "Western" medical claim that there is nothing curative for a virus; rather, it must run its course while we treat symptoms and hope for the best. I have long believed, what I've been taught by the Western medical community, that rather than treating virus, we endure virus.

Oh yes, we've recognized that immunity can come after infection, but still we endure the disease. Plus, based upon this immunity thing, we search for and "create" vaccines for viruses, believing that through the administering of vaccine, we can trick the body into thinking that it's had the disease that the virus brings, and thus trigger an immune response from our God given immune system, thus gaining the same immunity to the virus as if we'd actually had it ourselves.

Vaccines work... for making billions of dollars for the pharmaceutical industry, for doctors and for hospitals, for the federal government (who's CDC profits greatly from vaccine sales), and for lawyers who sue for vaccine injury. For those of us paying attention to the vaccine science, it seems that the only ones not benefiting greatly from vaccine are the vaccinated. Hmm...

In other parts of the world (and in some obscure and largely discredited pockets here in the West) treatments are used against virus. Frequently, rather than learning from them, we poo-poo them as primitive and ineffective, and we go on enduring virus, and/or (for most people) getting vaccinated against viruses. I guess if there's even one silver lining in this Covid nonsense it's that it's getting us to question many of our assumptions and pre-existing conclusions about virus treatment and cure.

The global prevalence of this novel corona virus has activated/ignited the creativity of God's Creation once again. In places all over the world, God's Creatures are finding curative therapies for virus... something that Western medicine has told us does not exist!

As I said at the outset of this note, another of you has sent me something on yet another successful treatment for Covid-19. The doctor who's using this particular treatment also recognizes the efficacy of some other treatments that are being used successfully. Yet the narrative that my country and yours is getting is not one of possible treatment and thus hope for those who get this virus. No. Rather, it is one of a death sentence, as Governor Cuomo of NY said, "The Disease is death", to be relieved only by vaccine, toward which (the supposed) best and brightest among us are working diligently.

But really, when someone finds something curative, thus demonstrating that maybe we've been mistaken and can now learn, grow, improve, etc, are they not the best and brightest? Instead, they are being – despite demonstrable success and scientific evidence – criticized roundly at best, and condemned outrightly at worst.

But let's not just observe this, let's analyze it. Let's think about the premises of the matter and the assumptions that underlie the conversations about the matter... for by examining the premises and assumptions underlying the consideration of a matter, we can get more clearly to the heart of the thing... perhaps discovering the truth, rather than being distracted by all the baggage that comes from the premises and assumptions.

First, let's ask some "whys". Why would we (our culture's information system, it's politicians and news media) tell people that there is no cure for this or any other virus, when there are cures available? In the event that they are able to discover such cures, a free people ought to be allowed to try those cures, and discuss them with others, and even advocate them if they work. But what we are seeing is quite the contrary. Any discussion of curative therapies for Covid-19 are not being merely discredited, but they are being censored. The major information sources in print, on TV, on radio, and on the Internet, are systematically burying information about curative treatments. In point of fact, they are censoring entire information platforms if those platforms do not adhere to a "mainstream narrative" of an "untreatable" disease the only salvation from which is a vaccine. One such platform, Brighteon.com, was censored this week by another, more popular platform, Facebook.com, expressly for allowing information to be aired which contradicted the "narrative". If any Facebook user recommends anything that appears on Brighteon.com, on any topic, Facebook censors that post and does not allow it to be published online. Thus the intended receiver never receives it. This began because Brighteon.com aired some videos of certain doctors who contradicted the medical/governmental narrative. When Brighteon.com refused to censor those doctors' videos, which Facebook had already censored, Facebook censored Brighteon.com itself... utterly.

What's going on here?

Almost weekly, I myself, one of those folks who's out to "discover" what's going on, rather than just holding to a narrative, hear of yet more successful treatments for virus... not just corona virus, but other viruses. As a matter of fact, one of the doctors whom Brighteon.com refused to censor is a doctor who's been a virologist for decades, has made numerous breakthrough discoveries about virus, and has worked to develop treatments for several viruses, rather than just waiting for vaccine. But this doctor's work and words, which I've been following for over 5 years now, are being discredited, and the doctor condemned. The narrative is being questioned, and so the source of the questioning is censored. In the same vein, Fox News published a story online, about a Chinese Virologist who escaped from China to "tell the world" of the danger of Covid-19 and China's complicity in allowing its spread, thus exposing the entire planet to a deadly thing that if not mitigated and vaccinated against, will kill countless millions. I watched the entire interview with this Chinese doctor, which was not censored, and it had all the proper points... It had an identifiable threat: Covid-19. It had a boogeyman: China. It had a guaranteed strategy and defense: social distancing and masks (Communist China's method and message). It had a solution: vaccine.

As I watched and listened to this "doctor/scientist", who'd "risked her life and her husband's and family's and colleagues' safety to deliver this all important message to the world", I asked myself, "Why are our mainstream media outlets allowing this - all of which comports with 'the narrative', and not allowing information about anything curative? In fact, why are they allowing her to advocate China's approach to the 'problem' - masks and social distancing - when both are scientifically, medically, common-sense-ically, nonsense?" Nothing about the interview added up, other than that it supported the narrative. Doing what was advocated in this “doctor's” story benefited the government, the news media, the pharmaceutical industry, the hospital and insurance industries... everyone but the humans who may need something curative for their ailments, and are being told, systemically, that it does not exist. Rather, they are being told that the only solutions to this problem are the ones being proposed by their governments. But when we look critically at the governments' “solutions”, both ours, China's and many others', those solutions are these... stop life as we know it for disease-spread mitigation thus destroying lives, businesses, futures, families, homes, dreams, etc... fear one another... isolate from one another... opt out of providing for yourself and look to, wait for, vote for the government to provide for you... support the creation of more and mandatory vaccine... become vocal and active advocates of these “solutions” to the point of policing one another and reporting those not in compliance... and do this all in the name of being “together” as if togetherness and compliance with the narrative are synonymous... need I go on?

What's going on here?

Something's not adding up here, Loved Ones... something's not adding up.

The reason that things are not adding up is to be found in the words of a writer for a publication of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), back in the 60's. As a radical, Marxist, revolutionary group, SDS had a publication that was intended to encourage, support and inspire its members and adherents. One writer in one of their newsletters encouraged their supporters thus. He reminded them, that rather than getting distracted by the details of any of the particular issues that may arise, even those issues being raised by SDS itself, SDS members must remember, “The issue is never the issue. The issue is always the revolution”.

Disease is nothing new. Contagion is nothing new. Sickness and the discovery of cures are nothing new. What is new is this. It is no longer doctors or even Granny to whom we look for cures or curative treatments for sickness. It is the government... those to whom, in our social contract, we have given a legal monopoly on the use of force. “Cures”, “treatments”, “best practices”, “spread-mitigation”, etc, etc, etc, are being decided by, mandated by and enforced by the government... read that, “by a will other than one's own”.

I don't know about you, but barring lawlessness – which is now being allowed and supported by state and municipal governments all over the country – I will allow no will other than God's will to take precedent over my own.... and He would have it thus. Selflessness? Indeed. Sacrifice? Indeed. The humble Mind of Christ? Indeed. Mutual submission where appropriate as in husbands and wives, children and parents, boss and employer? Indeed. But another's will other than God's? Never. Why have I entitled this essay, “And it continues”?

The enemy of our souls continues his quest for domination of God's world; controlling with lies and empty promises, all of God's creatures, getting them to bend to his will, rather than following their own, which God intended to be internally controlled by His Holy Spirit; not externally controlled by godless tyrants... even soft tyrants.

God is not using governments, whether democratic, socialist or totalitarian, to bless and benefit His own. He does His blessing frequently in spite of those governments. In fact, many of those governments will persecute and kill God's own just for following Him, and not them! Satan on the other hand, is continuing to use – for God's eternal purposes of course – man-made governments for the very same reasons that he lied to the first man and woman... to steal, kill and destroy. Am I saying that God is allowing governments to lie to their people, perhaps at the people's expense and to their detriment and possible death?!? Waddaya think?

Nevertheless, God's Truth is here/there/everywhere for us to search for... and find! We, you and I, are part of a community of Believers in God and in his Truth, who care enough for one another to share His Truths, even when they are unpopular, thus encouraging one another in the same manner in which the bad guys encourage one another, but with that which is Real, not illusory!

The issue is never the issue. The issue is always the Gospel... the Good News... the Euangalion... the Message... The Truth... Messiah, Jesus, for He is the Truth. Let's not be distracted from this, as satan's lies continue.
